

The League of Utah Writer's 2020 Anthology

The Function of Freedom

“The function of freedom is to free someone else.”

-Toni Morrison

Submissions Closed

Winners announced May 2020

Entry Fee

Membership to LUW

Rules and Guidelines

Short story, Flash fiction, poetry

5,000 words or less

Genre of your choice

Multiple entries will be accepted

Unpublished works only

Format Requirements

Entries must be submitted in PDF or Word, standard formatting, double spaced, Time New Roman, 12 point font.

Do not include your name in the body or heading of the manuscript. Type the title and word count at the top of the manuscript. Cover pages are not requested. Submit text only; illustrations are not accepted.

Submission

Electronic submissions only, by email, with your entry attached.

Include in the body of your email:

Name:

email:

Name of submission:

Word count of submission:

Feedback & Judge Commentary

All entrants will receive feedback including the strengths and weakness of:

Hook, Characters, Voice, Dialogue, Climax, and satisfying conclusion of their stories.

Entries will be evaluated on content, writing quality, and overall strength of storytelling and writing craft using the judging form.

Judges commentaries are final and are based on their opinion and experience. Their thoughts and comments are not to be a wholesale condemnation or appraisal of the story and should be taken with this understanding.

Publication

Your entry must be original, in English, unpublished and unproduced, and not accepted by any other publisher or producer at the time of submission.

LUW retains nonexclusive publication rights to the winning entries to be published in the LUW 85th Anniversary Anthology. Author retains all ownership of their work. Any works posted online, other than on a personal blog, are considered published.

Once an entry has been submitted no edits, replacements, or changes will be accepted.

LUW assumes that all entries are original and are the works and property of the entrant, with all rights granted therein. LUW is not liable for any copyright infringement on the part of an entrant and will not become involved in copyright disputes.